Enron: A Select Chronology of Corporate and Government Activities

Summary

Enron Corporation, which had more than $49 billion in total assets for 2001 and was listed as the seventh largest U.S. corporation (ranked by revenues in 2000) by Fortune magazine, filed for Chapter 11 reorganization protection on December 2, 2001. The Houston-based corporation and 13 affiliated entities filing for bankruptcy provoked intense media and congressional interest and questions involving the financial markets, securities and auditing firms, and corporate management and insurance and pension policies.

The federal government is examining Enron's corporate activities. Investigations by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission have commenced. Since December 2001, Congress has held numerous hearings on issues surrounding the Enron collapse, and additional hearings are scheduled. Numerous state and local governments have initiated legal proceedings against Enron and its affiliated entities.

This report is a chronology of select major corporate and federal government events that are relevant to the collapse of Enron. Chronology entries were compiled from congressional, corporate, and standard news sources. Web sites are provided when appropriate and available. This report will be updated as events warrant.

Enron: A Select Chronology of Congressional, Corporate, and Government Activities

A List of CRS Reports on Enron

Descriptions of the reports are taken from the reports themselves.

Overview

CRS Electronic Briefing Book. Banking and Financial Services. Page on “Enron Bankruptcy: Issues for Financial Oversight.”

CRS Report RS21135. The Enron Collapse: An Overview of Financial Issues.

This report presents basic background information on the collapse of the Enron Corporation, identifying public policy issues in financial market oversight.

CRS Report RS21177. Possible Criminal Provisions Which May Be Implicated in the Events Surrounding the Collapse of the Enron Corporation.

This report briefly summarizes some federal laws carrying criminal penalties which may be implicated in the events surrounding the collapse of the Enron Corp.

Auditing/Banking Issues

CRS Report RS21120. Auditing and Its Regulators: Proposals for Reform After Enron.

The Enron Corporation controversy has raised important questions about financial statement audits of corporations. These audits are to be carried out in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards (GAAS), rules that have carefully defined technical meanings. Auditors are regulated by both government agencies and professional organizations, though Enron’s bankruptcy raises questions about whether this oversight is adequate. One important question is whether Arthur Andersen, the financial auditor for Enron, compromised the independence it should have maintained as an auditor by engaging in extensive consulting work for Enron.

CRS Report RS21249. Auditor and Accounting Reform Legislation: H.R. 3763 and S. 2673.

This report compares the auditing and accounting reform measures passed by the House (H.R. 3763) and reported by the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

CRS Report RS20707. Auditor Independence: The SEC's 2000 Rulemaking.

Federal securities law requires that the financial statements of companies that sell stock or bonds to the public must be certified by an auditor who is independent of the company and its management. The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has proposed a new rule that would bar accounting firms from providing certain consulting services to the firms they audit. The SEC believes there is an inherent conflict between the public watchdog function of the independent auditor and the role of the consultant, who stands to benefit if the client firm prospers. The accounting profession was generally opposed to the rule, arguing that the prohibition will do significant harm to the accounting industry. Congressional action to block or delay implementation of the proposed rule is possible. This report describes the proposal, sets out the arguments pro and con, and analyzes the potential economic effects.

CRS Report RS21173. Auditor Oversight: Proposals for a New Regulator.

The collapse of Enron Corp. raises questions about the effectiveness of independent auditors in preventing deceptive accounting by corporations. Several proposals intended to strengthen auditing propose to create a new oversight body to replace the current system of relying on accountants to police themselves. This report summarizes the major features of these proposals.

CRS Report RL31483. Auditor Reform Proposals: A Side-by-Side Comparison.

This report compares the major provisions of three auditor and accounting reform proposals: H.R. 3763, S. 2673, and a rule proposed on June 20, 2002, by the SEC that would create a new auditor oversight board by using the SEC's existing authority to regulate corporate accounting.

CRS Report RS21188. Enron's Banking Relationships and Congressional Repeal of Statutes Separating Bank Lending From Investment Banking.

This report examines the relationship between the collapse of Enron Corporation and the repeal in 1999 of the Glass-Steagall Act, which had separated commercial lending from investment banking. It traces the passage of the Glass-Steagall Act in 1933 in the aftermath of the 1929 stock market crash and the onset of The Great Depression. It then describes events leading up to the 1999 Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (P.L. 106-102), which repealed Glass-Steagall and permitted financial holding companies that could combine commercial and investment banking. Finally, the report discusses whether this law was implicated in the Enron collapse, and lists, but does not discuss in detail some related policy questions that Congress is beginning to discuss.

CRS Report RL30516. Mergers and Consolidation Between Banking and Financial Services Firms: Trends and Prospects.

The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (P.L. 106-102) ended the separation of the investment banking business and commercial banking by its repeal of the Glass-Steagall Act of 1933. The financing of Enron Corp. through both securities issues and loans by prominent financial holding companies may refocus attention on the new regulatory framework.

Derivatives/Stock Regulation

CRS Report RL30434. CFTC Reauthorization in 2000: Derivatives Regulation Reconsidered.

This report analyzes the broad issues likely to dominate consideration of legislation to reauthorize the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, which created in 1974 to regulate derivative financial markets.

CRS Report RS20560. Derivatives Regulation: Legislation in the 106th Congress.

Industry participants and regulators have called for amendments to the laws regulating derivative financial instruments, to allow derivatives markets to modernize and to prevent the business from moving offshore. This report summarizes derivatives reform legislation before the 106th Congress.

CRS Report RL31348. Enron and Stock Analyst Objectivity.

This report examines the conflicts of interests that may compromise the objectivity of some stock analysts who report on and recommend stocks like Enron to investors. It also discusses recent Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and congressional interest in this area and discusses private sector and legislative reform initiatives to mitigate some of those conflicts of interests.

CRS Report RS21127. Federal Securities Law: Insider Trading.

This report discusses the federal securities statutes which limit or prohibit insider trading in securities.

Pension Issues

CRS Report RL30641. Employment Benefits in Bankruptcy.

This report provides an overview of the status of employee wages and benefits, including retiree benefits, when an employer files for bankruptcy.

CRS Report RS 21115. The Enron Bankruptcy and Employer Stock in Retirement Plans.

Financial losses suffered by participants in the Enron Corporation's 401(k) plan have prompted questions about the laws and regulations that govern these plans. This report describes current laws governing the holding of employer stock in employee retirement plans and summarizes the key policy questions that pension analysts have raised about holding such stock in defined contribution retirement plans.

CRS Report RL31319. Employer Stock in Retirement Plans: Bills in the 107th Congress.

This report describes bills introduced in the 107th Congress, in the wake of the Enron Corp. bankruptcy, which attempt to protect workers from the financial losses that could occur when a large proportion of their retirement savings are invested in securities issued by their employers.

CRS Report RL31248. Enron: Selected Securities, Accounting, and Pension Laws Possibly Implicated in Its Collapse.

This report discusses selected federal securities laws, federal pension laws, and accounting standards which Congress and the executive branch will likely examine in its investigations of the Enron collapse.

CRS Report RL31282. Tittle v. Enron Corp. and Fiduciary Duties Under ERISA.

The report focuses on Section 404(a) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA), the federal statute that regulates employer-sponsored pension plans. Section 404(a) is considered the “touchstone for understanding the scope and object of an ERISA fiduciary’s duties.” The report reviews selected cases that have interpreted Section 404(a) and discusses H.R. 3623, the Employee Savings Protection Act of 2002, a bill that would amend Section 404(a) to prohibit misrepresentations relating to employer securities by retirement plan fiduciaries.

Taxes/Political Contributions

CRS Report RL31288. Soft Money, Allegations of Political Corruption, and Enron.

This report examines the current state of federal law regarding the most persistent charges of government or political corruption relating to the Enron matter, including federal campaign finance regulation of hard money, the state of the federal law with respect to soft money, bribery, illegal gratuities, extortion, conflicts of interest and required recusals of government officials, and the “revolving door” regulations on former government officials.

CRS Report RS21149. Enron and Taxes.

This report briefly examines the role of taxes and tax issues in the recent financial difficulties of the Enron Corporation.

CRS Report RS21198. Independent Counsel or Special Prosecutor for the Enron Investigation.

This report discusses the circumstances and authority under which the Attorney General may, in light of the expiration of the Independent Counsel law, appoint a “special counsel” or a “special prosecutor” for a matter such as the Enron Corp. failure investigation and prosecutions.

Congressional Hearings – 2001 to 2002

Direct links to selected statements from recent hearings (available to congressional staff using the online version of this report) are provided at the Web sites of the committees which held the hearings. When a direct link is not available, it indicates that the witness did not provide prepared statements to the committee. Actual testimony is not available.
