Four agencies are led by a person appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate; two are appointed by Congress; one is appointed by the Librarian of Congress; and one is appointed by a board of directors.

Congress has periodically examined the procedures used to appoint these officers with the aim of protecting the prerogatives of, and ensuring accountability to, Congress within the framework of the advice and consent appointment process established in Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution.

This report contains information on the legislative branch agency heads' appointment processes, length of tenures (if terms are set), reappointment or removal provisions (if any), salaries and benefits, and most recent appointments.

Introduction

The leaders of the eight legislative branch agencies and entities—the Government Accountability Office, the Library of Congress, the Government Publishing Office (formerly Government Printing Office), the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, the U.S. Capitol Police, the Congressional Budget Office, the Congressional Research Service, and the Office of Congressional Workplace Rights—are appointed in a variety of manners.

The first four agencies are led by a person appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The next two are appointed by Congress, the next by the Librarian of Congress, and the last by a board of directors.

Congress has periodically examined the procedures used to appoint legislative branch officers with the aim of protecting the prerogatives of, and ensuring accountability to, Congress within the framework of the advice and consent appointment process established in Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution.<sup>1</sup> Legislation to alter the appointment process for legislative branch agencies and entities has periodically been introduced for many years.<sup>2</sup> Questions remain about various reform proposals, including the ability of Congress to remove the President from the appointment process for some of these positions. These may depend upon the implication or interpretation of the Appointments Clause of the Constitution, the definition of an “officer of the United States,” the specific office or agency in question, and whether or not a change in appointing authority would require any revision in the powers and duties of legislative branch agency leaders. Some previous reforms and proposals have also attempted to find a role for the House of Representatives, which does not play a formal role in the confirmation of presidential nominees, in the search for legislative branch officials.

Overview by Legislative Branch Agency or Entity

The following sections contain information on the legislative branch agency heads’ appointment processes, length of tenures (if terms are set), reappointment or removal provisions (if any), salaries and benefits, and most recent appointments. Information is provided on each agency and summarized in Table 1.

<sup>1</sup> This section states: The President “shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States, whose Appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by Law: but the Congress may by Law vest the Appointment of such inferior Officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the Courts of Law, or in the Heads of Departments.” For additional background information on presidential appointments, see CRS Report R45028, Presidential Appointments to Full-Time Positions in Independent and Other Agencies During the 114th Congress, by Jared C. Nagel and Michael Greene.

- a. For information on 2019 rates for certain senior officials, see <https://chcoc.gov/content/modified-pay-freeze-certain-senior-political-officials>. Level II is the salary for many deputy secretaries and heads of independent agencies (5 U.S.C. 5313). From calendar year 2014 through calendar year 2018, legislation limited pay increases for certain appointees who are paid at rates equal to the Executive Schedule (P.L. 113-76, Division E, title VII, §741, January 17, 2014; P.L. 113-235, Division E, title VII, §738, December 16, 2014; P.L. 114-113, Division E, title VII, §738, December 18, 2015; P.L. 115-31, Division E, title VII, §738, May 5, 2017; P.L. 115-141, Division E, title VII, §738, March 23, 2018). The Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2019 (P.L. 116-6, Division D, title VII, §749, February 15, 2019) applied a modified pay freeze to calendar year 2019. For the rate of compensation of House and Senate officers, for those salaries linked to these rates, see 2 U.S.C. §4532 and §4571.

Architect of the Capitol

Pursuant to the Legislative Branch Appropriations Act, 1990,<sup>3</sup> the Architect is “appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of 10 years.”<sup>4</sup> The act also established a congressional commission responsible for recommending individuals to the President for the position of Architect of the Capitol. The commission, originally consisting of the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore of the Senate, the majority and minority leaders of the House of Representatives and the Senate, and the chairs and the ranking minority Members of the Committee on House Administration and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, was expanded in 1995 to include the chairs and ranking minority Members of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees.<sup>5</sup>

Prior to 1989, the Architect was selected by the President for an unlimited term without any formal involvement of Congress. The FY1990 act, however, followed numerous attempts dating at least to the 1950s to alter the appointment procedure to provide a role for Congress. The proposals included requiring the advice and consent of the Senate,<sup>6</sup> establishing a commission to recommend names to the President, and removing the appointment process from the President and instead making the Architect appointed solely by Congress.

In the 111th Congress, two measures (H.R. 2185 and H.R. 2843) were introduced to remove the President from the Architect appointment process and shift it to congressional leaders and chairs and ranking Members of specific congressional committees. Under both measures, the Architect would still serve a 10-year term. Under H.R. 2843, as reported, the Architect would have been appointed jointly by the same 14-member panel, equally divided between the House and Senate, that currently is responsible for recommending candidates to the President. This bill was reported by the Committee on House Administration (H.Rept. 111-372) on December 10, 2009. The Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure was discharged from further consideration the same day. The House agreed to the bill, as amended to include an 18-member panel,<sup>7</sup> also equally divided between the House and Senate, by voice vote on February 3, 2010. H.R. 2843 was received in the Senate and referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration, although no further action was taken.

Under the earlier bill (H.R. 2185, 111th Congress), which was introduced on April 30, 2009, the Architect would have been appointed jointly by the Speaker of the House, the Senate majority leader, the minority leaders in the House and Senate, the chairs and ranking minority Members of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, and the chairs and ranking minority Members of the Committee on House Administration and Senate Committee on Rules and Administration. This bill followed similar legislation (H.R. 6656, 110th Congress), with the same 12-member appointing panel, introduced on July 30, 2008. Both bills were referred to two committees, but no further action was taken.<sup>8</sup>

<sup>6</sup> For example, S. 2760 (96th Cong., S.Rept. 96-818) passed the Senate on November 24, 1980, but received no further action.

<sup>7</sup> The bill, as amended, would have included the following in addition to the original 14-member panel: the chair and ranking minority Member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives, a Member of the Senate to be designated by the majority leader of the Senate, and a Member of the Senate to be designated by the minority leader of the Senate.

The Architect of the Capitol is compensated at an “annual rate which is equal to the lesser of the annual salary for the Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives or the annual salary for the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate.”<sup>9</sup>

Most Recent Appointment

Stephen T. Ayers was nominated by President Obama for a 10-year term on February 24, 2010. He was the second Architect nominated pursuant to the new commission procedure. The nomination was referred to the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration. The committee held a hearing on April 15, 2010, and Ayers was confirmed by unanimous consent in the Senate on May 12, 2010. Ayers was previously the Deputy Architect/Chief Operating Officer and had served as Acting Architect of the Capitol following the February 4, 2007, retirement of former Architect of the Capitol Alan Hantman.<sup>10</sup>

Upon the retirement of Ayers on November 23, 2018, Christine Merdon, the Deputy Architect of the Capitol/Chief Operating Officer, became the Acting Architect of the Capitol. After her resignation in August 2019, Thomas J. Carroll became Acting Architect of the Capitol.

Government Accountability Office

Pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 703(a)(1), the Comptroller General shall be “appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.” This procedure dates to the establishment of the agency in 1921.<sup>11</sup> Additionally, a commission procedure established in 1980 recommends individuals to the President in the event of a vacancy.<sup>12</sup> The commission consists of the Speaker of the House, the President pro tempore of the Senate, the majority and minority leaders of the House and Senate, the chairs and ranking minority Members of the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs and the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform. The commission is to recommend at least three individuals for this position to the President, although the President may request additional names.

The Comptroller General is appointed to a 15-year term and may not be reappointed.<sup>13</sup> The Comptroller General may be removed by “(A) impeachment; or (B) joint resolution of Congress, after notice and an opportunity for a hearing” and only by reason of permanent disability; inefficiency; neglect of duty; malfeasance; or a felony or conduct involving moral turpitude.<sup>14</sup>

Most Recent Appointment

Gene L. Dodaro, then-Chief Operating Officer at GAO, became the acting Comptroller General on March 13, 2008, upon the resignation of David M. Walker,<sup>17</sup> who had previously been confirmed on October 21, 1998. The White House announced Dodaro's nomination to a 15-year term as Comptroller General on September 22, 2010. The Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs held a hearing on the nomination on November 18, 2010, and Dodaro was confirmed by the Senate by unanimous consent on December 22, 2010.

Government Publishing Office

The Government Publishing Office (formerly Government Printing Office) was established in 1861. The U.S. Code, at 44 U.S.C. 301, states that the President “shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint a suitable person to take charge of and manage the Government Publishing Office. The title shall be Director of the Government Publishing Office.”

The current appointment language was enacted in 2014,<sup>18</sup> although the use of the advice and consent procedure for this position can be traced back much further.<sup>19</sup> There is no set term of office for the Director. The Director's pay is equivalent to Level II of the Executive Schedule.<sup>20</sup>

Most Recent Appointment

GPO has had multiple officials serving in an acting capacity since November 2017.

Most recently, GPO's Managing Director of Plant Operations John Crawford become Acting Deputy Director on April 1, 2019. GPO's former Chief Administrative Officer, Herbert H.

<sup>17</sup> Pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 703, “The Comptroller General shall designate an officer or employee of the Government Accountability Office to act as Comptroller General when the Comptroller General and Deputy Comptroller General are absent or unable to serve or when the offices of Comptroller General and Deputy Comptroller General are vacant.”

<sup>19</sup> See, for example: P.L. 90-620, October 22, 1968, 82 Stat. 1239; and previously, nomination of John D. Defrees to be Superintendent of Public Printing, Senate Executive Journal, March 16, 1861, p. 307, and March 20, 1861, p. 319; designation as congressional printer in ch. 61, 14 Stat. 399, February 22, 1867 and debate in *Cong. <sup>20</sup> This rate was established with the FY2004 Legislative Branch Appropriations Act (P.L. 108-83, September 30, 2003, 117 Stat. 1033, 44 U.S.C. 303). Pay for the Public Printer previously was equivalent to Level III of the Executive Schedule.

Jackson Jr., served as Acting Deputy Director from July 1, 2018, until his retirement on March 31, 2019. His service followed the retirement of Andrew M. Sherman, formerly GPO's Chief of Staff, who had been serving as Acting Deputy Director following the retirement of Acting GPO Director Jim Bradley on March 6, 2018. Bradley, previously the GPO Deputy Director, had assumed this role following the departure of the previous Director, Davita Vance-Cooks, in November 2017. Vance-Cooks had been nominated by President Obama on May 9, 2013, to be Public Printer, as the head of the GPO was then known, and confirmed by the Senate by voice vote on August 1, 2013.

During this vacancy period, Robert C. Tapella was twice nominated to be Director. Previously, Tapella served in this role from October 4, 2007 (confirmed by the Senate by voice vote) until December 28, 2010. He was subsequently nominated on June 18, 2018. The nomination was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration. No further action was taken prior to the end of the 115th Congress, and the nomination was returned to the President pursuant to Senate Rule XXXI. President Trump renominated Tapella on January 16, 2019. The nomination was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration. A message from the President withdrawing the nomination was received in the Senate on June 24, 2019.<sup>21</sup>

Library of Congress

The Library of Congress was established in 1800. The U.S. Code, at 2 U.S.C. 136, states: "The Librarian of Congress shall make rules and regulations for the government of the Library."

Until an act of February 19, 1897,<sup>22</sup> which made the appointment subject to the advice and consent of the Senate, the Librarian was appointed solely by the President.

Recent changes to the appointment statute, at 2 U.S.C. 136-1, amended the tenure of the Librarian. The Librarian of Congress Succession Modernization Act of 2015, S. 2162, was introduced in the Senate on October 7, 2015, and agreed to the same day by unanimous consent. It was agreed to in the House without objection on October 20 and signed by President Obama on November 5, 2015 (P.L. 114-86). The act establishes a term limit of 10 years, with the possibility of reappointment by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Previously, there was no set term of office for the Librarian.

The U.S. Code, at 2 U.S.C. 136a-2, states: "the Librarian of Congress shall be compensated at an annual rate of pay which is equal to the annual rate of basic pay payable for positions at Level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5."<sup>23</sup>

Most Recent Appointment

Carla D. Hayden was nominated to a 10-year term as Librarian of Congress by President Obama on February 24, 2016.<sup>24</sup> The Senate Committee on Rules and Administration held a hearing on the nomination on April 20, 2016, and ordered the nomination favorably reported on June 9.<sup>25</sup>

Congressional Research Service

The Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970 provides that the Librarian of Congress appoint the Director of the Congressional Research Service (CRS) “after consultation with the Joint Committee on the Library.”<sup>27</sup> The basic rate of pay for the director is equivalent to Level III of the Executive Schedule. There is no set term of office.<sup>28</sup>

Most Recent Appointment

Mary B. Mazanec, who served as Acting Director of CRS following the retirement of former Director Daniel P. Mulhollan on April 2, 2011, was appointed Director by the Librarian of Congress on December 5, 2011.

U.S. Capitol Police

2 U.S.C. 1901 states: “There shall be a captain of the Capitol police and such other members with such rates of compensation, respectively, as may be appropriated for by Congress from year to year. The Capitol Police shall be headed by a Chief who shall be appointed by the Capitol Police Board and shall serve at the pleasure of the Board.” The last sentence was inserted in 1979,<sup>29</sup> struck by the FY2003 Consolidated Appropriations Resolution,<sup>30</sup> and restored in 2010 by the U.S. Capitol Police Administrative Technical Corrections Act.<sup>31</sup>

Pursuant to the FY2003 act, the chief of the Capitol Police receives compensation “equal to $1,000 less than the lower of the annual rate of pay in effect for the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives or the annual rate of pay in effect for the Sergeant-at-Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate.”<sup>32</sup> Pay for the chief has been adjusted multiple times in recent years: it formerly was (1) equal to Level IV of the Executive Schedule under 1979 legislation, (2) linked to the Senior Executive Service under an act from 2000, and (3) equal to $2,500 less than these officers pursuant to a 2002 law.<sup>33</sup>

Congressional Budget Office

The director of the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) has been appointed wholly by Congress since the creation of the post with the passage of the Congressional Budget Act in 1974. The act stipulates that the director is appointed for a four-year term “by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate after considering recommendations received from the Committees on the Budget of the House and the Senate, without regard to political affiliation and solely on the basis of his fitness to perform his duties.”<sup>36</sup> The director may be reappointed, and either chamber can remove the director by simple resolution.<sup>37</sup> Additionally, a director appointed “to fill a vacancy prior to the expiration of a term shall serve only for the unexpired portion of that term” and an “individual serving as Director at the expiration of a term may continue to serve until his successor is appointed.”<sup>38</sup>

The director of CBO receives compensation at an annual rate that is equal to the lower of the highest annual rate of compensation of any officer of the House or any officer of the Senate.<sup>39</sup>

executive director must be “an individual with training or expertise in the application of laws referred to in section 1302(a)” of Title II of the U.S. Code.<sup>43</sup>

The FY2008 Consolidated Appropriations Act altered the compensation for the Office’s statutorily established positions, including that of the executive director.<sup>44</sup> The chair of the board may fix the annual rate of pay for the executive director, although the level may not exceed the lesser of House or Senate officers. Prior to the FY2008 act, the maximum pay for this position had been Level V of the Executive Schedule.

Separate legislation, P.L. 110-164, amended the Congressional Accountability Act and altered eligibility and tenure restrictions for the executive director by allowing current or former employees of the Office to serve in this capacity. The legislation also permits the executive director, deputy executive directors, and general counsel, who formerly were limited to one five-year term in their positions, to serve up to two terms.<sup>45</sup>
